SUMMARY

According to the United Nations, since 2010, around 5 million Syrian people have fled their country due to years of civil war. We often read the headlines and become concerned for national security. But many Christians have seen the migration of Syrians into Europe as an opportunity to reach them with the love and grace of Jesus.

Join Clayton Rhodes, one of our FBC missionaries, as he leads a team to Germany and spends a week alongside missionaries who are planting a church among Syrian refugees. Most Syrian people are Muslims. So this will be an opportunity to be part of an outreach and church plant among Muslim people. This journey will open your eyes to what the Spirit is doing, how he is working. "off the radar," bringing many to Jesus.

Who - We are looking for people who love Jesus. No previous mission experience is necessary. You do not need any previous exposure to Muslim evangelism or church planting.

Health - You should be in average to good health.
